Starck 1

The barrel-shaped vanity unit, made from warm wood veneer in Pearwood, American Walnut and Macassar.

Starck 1 _ We need to stop and think about the basic facts of life – a statement from somebody whose design provides answers instead of easy affirmations. For his bathroom series, Starck delves deeper. He's interested in matter per se, not in the matter of fact. Essence is the consequence. Getting back to basics. A cliché, certainly. But also_A philosophy, a principle of life and design. The bathroom by Starck 1.

Starck shower tray, rectangular, 1800 x 900 mm.

Philippe Starck has made history. Over the years, his many creations have turned into classics and his name has reached cult status. What more can a man offer, who has given the world lemon juicers that are alien look-alikes, toothbrushes from outer space, TV sets carved from cork and Mega-glow-worms? - A whole lot. Edition 2_ The bathroom at source. And once again, the world has become richer, in terms of design, but also in terms of life-style. History in the making.

Sometimes one letter is all it takes to open up a whole new bathroom world. D for design. Happy D., created by Sieger Design. A bathroom series whose name is programmatic and promising at the same time. Manufactured by Duravit, all items in the range bring to mind the distinctive shape of the letter D - and are a real lucky strike when it comes to form, function and affordability. Features that go to make a modern classic which will give us pleasure for many years to come. Sometimes one letter is all it takes to open up a new bathroom world. And bring a smile to your face.

A bathroom on a completely new level. Eating, sleeping, working, living: the way we live is subject to gradual but continual change. And – along with all the other aspects of our homes – our perceptions of the bathroom have changed. The bathroom is no longer seen as a separate, isolated space but as an integral part of an organic and open whole. As a place that needs to meet a range of different needs. As a place that adapts to suit the people who use it, rather than making people adapt to suit it. Functional and friendly, inviting and individual. Meeting these changing requirements calls for the right range of bathroom furniture. Here it is: 2nd floor.

The Bauhaus maxim "less is more" may date back to the 1920s, but it's never been truer than it is today – thanks to 2nd floor. Chosen and combined with care, the pieces in this collection amount to nothing less than a new concept for the bathroom and for living. A concept that unites form and function to offer so much more: more aesthetic appeal, more comfort, more quality of life. That's 2nd floor: design that is at once reduced and refined. Design that is both minimalist and full of charm. Design that combines austerity with downright pleasure. If only it was always this easy to practice restraint.

Bathroom_Foster

Is it design or is it architecture? In any case, it is genuine Foster. Sensational, like all his work: Stansted Airport in London and Chek Lap Kok Airport in Hong Kong, the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank and the new German Reichstag. Once again, the architect and designer Norman Foster has excelled himself and created a bathroom that pushes the boundaries, which defines the bathroom anew. Bathroom_Foster. Made by Duravit.

X-Large

Tom, Dick or Harry? Common or garden? No thank you. This is X-Large, the bathroom furniture range with a difference. High quality cool and natural colours. Back-lit frosted glass. Why X-Large? Because the 80 cm width is almost twice that of standard modular systems. In spite of the generous dimensions, X-Large is notable for its elegant proportions and light look. And the enormous product range with all kinds of details produces unique bathroom designs – even if your budget is not X-Large.

Especially to coordinate with the new Vero washbasin range, Sieger Design has created wall-mounted vanity units in different widths.

Vero

The practical Vero handrinse basins are ideal as an elegant cloakroom solution where space is at a premium.

Vero – angular bathroom designs. Most rooms are rectangular – so why shouldn't washbasins also have this shape? The Vero washbasin range has become a classic among architects and design lovers. Hardly surprising, since the purist forms are matched by practical convenience, making Vero ideal for a variety of applications. It is particularly effective when combined with chrome support frames or consoles from the Fogo range.

Natural, modern, practical and easy to combine. Fogo, the bathroom furniture range with a real wood veneer, gives your design imagination free rein. The underlying concept and clear lines not only make Fogo ideal for small bathrooms but also put the space in larger rooms to the best advantage. The various surface finishes allow it to be integrated into different lifestyles. The washbasin consoles and vanity units with their different widths and the tall cabinet with mobile storage unit provide the flexibility required to create a cosy but personalised arrangement. Ciottolo Washbasin or sculpture? Ciottolo is both. Created by Sieger Design, the range sets new standards in the high art of extravagant bathroom styling. Circular or oval ceramic bowls reminiscent of pebbles rest on consoles or on wall-mounted or freestanding vanity units with elegant real wood veneer in ice birch or high-gloss rosewood inside and out. The range is complemented by elegant towel holders and matching mirrors with new, attractive light panels at the sides.

Ciottolo represents a seamless transformation from pebble ("Ciotto" in Italian) to bowl. Seemingly weightless, the simple sculpture rests on the wall-mounted unit and elevates the washbasin to a work of art. The ensemble can be completed with elegant chrome towel rails.

Above picture: The circular countertop bowl adds brilliance and glamour to any bathroom or guest toilet. The basin is also available in a luxurious platinum finish, a completely new kind of precious metal glaze, for an especially avant-garde shine (left). Unpretentious yet elegant - the droplet-shaped countertop bowl (bottom picture).

Starck X

How to turn minimalism into luxury. Designer Philippe Starck likes to reduce things to the essentials. Starck X takes this minimalism to a level that puts the bathroom range in a class of its own. The sculptured ceramics raise the objects to works of art, unmistakable and inimitable. The same applies to the distinctive aesthetic and design features of the bathroom furniture. With their cubic form and straight lines the generously dimensioned bathtubs are pure temptation. For all this, the human element is the main focus of the design, creating new energy to meet the day - perhaps the greatest luxury of all.

Blue Moon

From time immemorial, the moon has held a fascinating appeal across all cultures and ages and is said to symbolise our dreams. With the new „Blue Moon“ pool tub, Jochen Schmiedem and Duravit are making bathroom dreams come true. A basic square surround conceals the actual water pool, only revealing the circular opening to the eye. With a generous depth of 53 cm, the pool stands for comfort and spaciousness in the purest form, further underscored by the attractive details. Bathing in a pool? Letting yourself go? Floating? Pure relaxation? It's not easy to describe the feeling. Suffice to say that Blue Moon is a unique bathing experience.

With its square body and round tub the Blue Moon whirlpool looks like a pool; and with its water depth of 53 cm it feels like one, too - despite occupying an area of just 140 x 140 cm.

As to style, the bath is based on the modular system. On top: wooden and acrylic inlays.

Sundeck

In the bathroom. In the living room. On the patio... Sundeck is a stroke of genius in all senses and in all surroundings. The distinctly stylish look cuts a dashing figure anywhere in the home where there is a hot water connection. A practical cover keeps the fragrant bathwater warm until you climb in. And that's not all: folded back, it provides the bather with a comfortable headrest, folded out it becomes a relaxing deck and shelf area. And despite all the practical functionality, Sundeck always looks like an elegant item of furniture. That, too, is wellbeing - for all the senses.

Quality and tradition with a new look down to the smallest detail: in the bathroom or on the terrace, covered or exposed to the elements, Sundeck offers a wellness experience of a different kind.

Hand-sewn white cushions and neckrolls are available for additional comfort: Headrest and foldable relaxing deck (left picture).

Seadream

Seadream. The dream combination: a refreshing shower in the morning and a relaxing bath in the evening. Corner bathtubs are a popular choice when renovating bathrooms, with good reason. Floor space is at a premium and free-standing furniture takes up a lot of room. We joined forces with Jochen Schmiedem to find the perfect solution for all those who are looking to combine maximum bathing comfort with a more-than-generous showering zone in the minimum of space. Shower and bath without compromises? Seadream makes it possible.

A step that hugs the contours of the tub transforms Seadream's L-shape into a rectangle. A second small step can be positioned variably and additionally facilitates access.
